21. _____ “Little Sister? Is that you? Are you a girl or a bird spirit?”

22. _____ “I don’t know if I blame you for my scar, but all these years you have tormented me, and that is your fault.”

23. _____ “You are changing. You have never sat with me by the fire before.”

24. _____ “I required time alone with the spirits. That time has now passed. All will be fine. The rains will come.”

25. _____ “I go. Praise Inti. Touch Sacred Rock. Ask question.”

Put these events in the order in which they occurred in the book. (3 points each)

A. “It was time to do something I had avoided ever since I had become the Ugly One. It was time to confront Ucho.

B. Sumac Huanacauri was a sorry-looking thing, mostly bald, with clumps of dirty reddish feathers sticking out of its body. At once I felt a connection to it, for it, also, was ugly.

C. Listen and I will tell you of all the wonderful places and times I see in Beyond as the ever-blowing, ever-moving wind.

D. I had feared that my teacher would leave me, but it never occurred to me that I would be saying good-bye to my sister. We had only a small amount of time left together.

E. Suddenly, Sumac reached down, and in one quick peck he snatched the bug into his mouth. The Handsome One had eaten my spider lesson!

F. “You have spoken well with the world today, New Voice. We have been welcomed to Winay Wayna. Our journey is over. We have arrived at the Gathering.”

G. The words that I had spoken surprised me to my very core. I opened my eyes in panic. What had I just done?

H. I hesitated. I preferred to be alone, but the lure of the yunka stranger was too strong.
